

Surgical Technology

SEWARD COUNTY COMMUNITY COLLEGE

Surgical Technologists are allied health professionals who are an integral part of the team of medical practitioners providing surgical care to patients. The profession of surgical technology has grown to meet the continuing demand for well-educated, highly skilled, and versatile individuals who work with the surgeon and other professionals to deliver the highest possible level of patient care. The surgical technologist possesses expertise in the theory and application of aseptic technique and combines the knowledge of human anatomy, surgical procedures, instrumentation and technologies to facilitate a physician's performance of invasive therapeutic and diagnostic procedures.

Career Opportunities Employment of surgical technologists is expected to grow faster than average for all occupations through the year 2020. Most surgical technologists are employed in operating rooms; however, they also work in delivery wards, clinics, surgery centers, and offices of physicians and dentists who perform outpatient surgery. A few, known as private scrubs, are employed directly by surgeons.

Degree Options Seward County Community College offers a two-year Associate in Applied Science degree in the surgical technology field.

Advising Your SCCC Surgical Technology department advisor will help you plan your course of study and outline the specific requirements for completion of a certificate or degree program.
